

HOUSE MAY BREAK WITH BRUMBAUGH IN FIGHT FOR REFORMS

Representatives Said to Be Hostile to the Governor's Local Option Bill, Child Labor and Compensation Measures.

Foes of Temperance and Humane Legislation Waiting to Knife Proposals in the Face of Popular Demand—Executive Still Confident, However

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.] HARRISBURG, March 11.—The members of the House today are waiting for the leaders to give them an opportunity to break openly with Governor Brumbaugh and bring about a fight which would carry not only against local option, but also against workmen's compensation, child labor and other administration measures. The Governor's succession of moves in his fight for the enactment of a local option law is the cause for this hostile attitude on the part of the House. Prominent members of the House are resenting what they term "coercion" and "interference" on the part of the Governor. "The House is like a volcano," said one prominent member last night. The Governor's latest move, his statement yesterday to the effect that he is investigating the campaign expense accounts of every member in an effort to learn whether any contributions from the liquor interests are included, has served to put the "wet" members, who heretofore have been quiet, up in arms. The members of the House who have openly said that they would vote against local option, have been giving as their reason that they are pledged to the "wets."

The Governor yesterday asserted that he has as yet found no item in any of the members' campaign expense accounts that could be attributed to the liquor interests. The resulting implication is that the "wet" members are in the position of having to explain why they are pledged to the "wets."

The Governor's searching probe into the campaign expense accounts of the members is unprecedented, and that fact has added to the resentment of the Representatives who are opposing the Governor in his fight. The Governor today repeated his assertion that the bill would pass the House. "I see no reason why I should not continue to believe this," he said. Letters and other messages that carry pledges of support in the Governor's fight for local option continue to flood the executive offices. They are pouring in from every section of the State.

A FLOOD OF LETTERS. The Philadelphia members of the House, especially, are receiving hundreds of postal cards signed by voters, asking them to vote for the local option bill. That the Philadelphia members are sincerely taking into account the wishes of their constituents in this question, is shown by the fact that every Representative from Philadelphia is having every one of these postal cards.

Democratic State Chairman Roland S. Morris is in bad standing with the local optionists today, as the result of a statement which he issued here. In the statement he called attention to the fact that Governor Brumbaugh's name was on the Personal Liberty ticket.

Chairman Morris came here at the request of A. Mitchell Palmer to address to the Democratic members of the House to support the Governor in the local option fight.

Several of the Democratic members of the House opposed to local option also ran on the Personal Liberty ticket with Governor Brumbaugh, and they, therefore, feel obliged to support the liquor interests," said Mr. Morris.

MORRIS HAS SUSPICIONS. He also made another remark in his statement that implied that the "liquor ring" supported Governor Brumbaugh's campaign. "I am hopeful that the Republican machine will find very few Democrats foolish enough to offer themselves as victims to the liquor ring, which used every effort to defeat the Democratic ticket that fell," he said. Chairman Morris' influence here is regarded as negative. There are 49 Democrats in the House and only eight of them are regarded as followers of the Palmer-McCormick organization. The others are either members of the Old Guard or are independent in their attitude toward legislation. The Old Guard members are all expected to vote against local option.

DEMOCRATS FOR LOCAL OPTION. Democratic legislators have been instructed by the Democratic Club to vote for local option and woman suffrage. The local option resolution, introduced by James Shaughey, was adopted by a vote of 49 yeas and 10 nays. "Resolved, by the Democratic Club, That we join with A. Mitchell Palmer, State National Committeeman, to request the Democratic members of the Pennsylvania Legislature to vote yeas to approve and endorse the Williams local option bill giving counties the right to vote for or against the bill as adopted by the State Democratic platform of 1914."

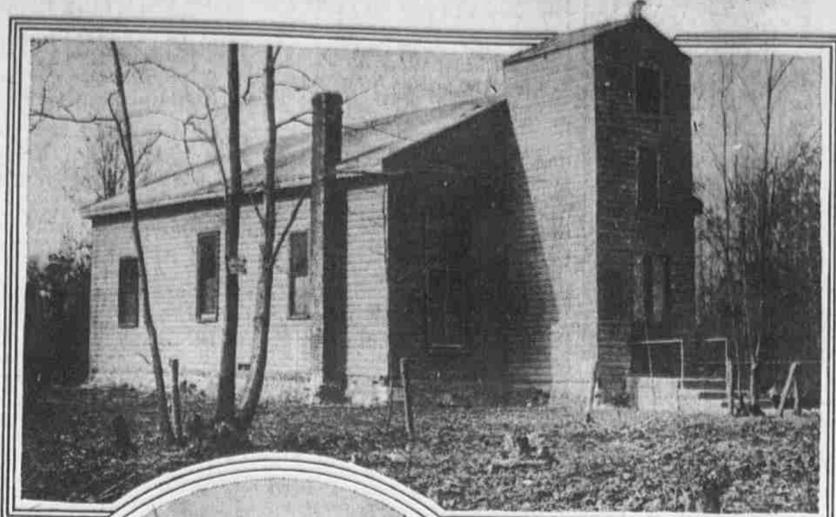

HEARING WILL BE HELD ON "FULL-CREW" LAW REPEALER. Railroads to Be Asked if They Will Grant Rate Concessions.

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.] HARRISBURG, March 11.—A public hearing will be held on the "full crew" law repealer. No date has as yet been set, but the chairman of the House Committee on Railroads and the Senate leader today decided to hold a joint session of the Railroads' Committees of both branches some time during the next three weeks.

The hearing will be held, it was said today, for the purpose of learning whether the railroads are willing to make concessions in the matter of rates if the Legislature will repeal the law. Many Senators and members of the House have taken the position all along that, since the principle used the law as one of their principal arguments for an increase in both the passenger and freight rates, they should offer to return to the former schedule of passenger rates if the Legislature repeals the law.

The repealer will be discussed for a short time in the House Committee on Railroads last night. A majority of the members of the committee favored a public hearing, in which the entire question should be fully discussed and the Senate leaders were consulted and agreed to hold the hearing.

ENDS LIFE WHILE MAIL BRINGS OFFER OF JOB

Unused Heroin Pill Found in Purse of Fifteen-year-old Suicide.

A postal card stating that he could begin work tomorrow came a few hours too late to save the life of 15-year-old Albert Bleasch, of 3411 Frankford avenue, who ended his life early today. The despondent boy shot himself through the right temple after a fruitless search of many weeks to get work to support his widowed mother.

An unused heroin pill, carefully concealed in a purse, and a bottle half filled with perfume, were found beside his body. His mother made the discovery that he had killed himself this morning when she came downstairs to prepare breakfast. Mrs. Bleasch said that her son spent yesterday in search of a position, and that he had inserted an advertisement in one of the morning newspapers in the hope that this would bring him the employment for which he had been searching for several months. This morning a postal card from Edward Rattafes, of 15 North 19th street, stated that the boy could report for work tomorrow.

The boy returned home late last night after the family retired. When he left home earlier in the day he told his mother that he wanted to get up this morning to continue his search for work. Mrs. Marie Sattler, who has rooms on the second floor of the Bleasch home, said today that she heard a dull thud last night, but she attached no importance to it and did not bother to investigate. This morning, Mrs. Bleasch, upon entering the kitchen, found the body of her son lying beside a chair. A few feet away was lying a revolver with one chamber empty. There was no message or any writing to give the reasons for his act. The heroin pill was found by the police when they searched the room later. The Coroner is trying to learn where the boy procured the revolver. Mrs. Bleasch declares that she had known nothing about the weapon. The boy, it was learned, was a member of the "Sportmen's Club," an organization composed of 46 boys, all about the age of Bleasch. It is believed that the revolver may have belonged to the club. The other members are George Mammel, Jr., of 3410 Kensington avenue; Christian Mammel, his brother, and Frank Campbell. These boys will be questioned by the Coroner when they return from work today.

ONE-FOURTH OF STATE CATHOLIC, IS REPORT

Latest Census Shows Pennsylvania Second in Followers of Church.

Nearly one-fourth of the entire population of Pennsylvania is Catholic, according to figures in the advance sheet of the Official Catholic Directory, published by P. J. Kennedy & Sons, New York. The exact figures show 1,756,763 Catholics in this State. New Jersey does not present quite so high a percentage. The figures given for that State are 555,000, a ratio of one Catholic in every 41-3 inhabitants. This is considerably higher than the percentage for the entire United States, which is 1 in every 6. The directory gives the total number of Catholics in this country as 16,309,310.

New York leads the States, with Pennsylvania second and New Jersey seventh. New Jersey in the last year passed Michigan and Wisconsin. The increase throughout the country over last year was 211,225, while for the last 10 years it has been 3,846,517. The church has gained 7,231,445, or nearly as many people as there are in Pennsylvania, in the last 20 years. The number of Catholic churches in the United States is given as 14,951, a gain of 310 during the year. There are 18,994 Catholic clergymen in the country, and 670 young men are studying for the priesthood in 35 seminaries. The church maintains 229 colleges for boys, 680 academies for girls, 284 orphan asylums, and 5488 parochial schools, with 1,445,300 children enrolled. New York leads the States with 2,885,824 Catholics; Pennsylvania is second; Illinois third, with 1,473,379, and Massachusetts fourth, with 1,329,000.

They finally decided to return to New York and a collection was taken up for them.

GAGS AND ROBS BELLBOY

Hotel Thief Gets Change for $100 and Escapes. NEW YORK, March 11.—A well-dressed young man, registering as "N. C. Gray, Washington," yesterday afternoon succeeded in robbing the Hotel McAlpin of $100 by a bold ruse. The man engaged a room, saying that his baggage would arrive later. Some time afterward he telephoned the office and asked that change be sent up for a $100 bill.

When Joseph Abundant, a bellboy, arrived at the room with the money, the stranger engaged him in conversation. Apparently by accident, he dropped a quarter on the floor and, as the bellboy stooped to pick it up, "Gray" hit him on the head with the butt end of a revolver. Then he snatched the boy, and with the $100 in change in his possession quietly left the hotel.

Shoots Bride and Kills Himself

NEW YORK, March 11.—When startled tenants of 107 West 43d street broke down the doors of William Brown's apartment because they heard three shots, they found Mrs. Grace Brown, his bride of three months, kneeling by his bedside in prayer. She had a bullet wound in her breast, and Brown, on the bed, had a bullet hole through his head. A pistol was at his feet. Brown, a brakeman on the New York Central lines, had just returned from his wedding trip to the coast, and was insanely jealous of his bride. Brown died on his way to the hospital. Mrs. Brown may recover.

Suffering Prompts Suicide

Constant suffering for the last two years, due to paralysis, caused George Schott, 38 years old, of 31 South 53d street, to commit suicide today at his home by drinking poison. The man had been melancholy for several days. Schott's body was found in the bathroom by his wife and daughter. Thinking that a spark of life might remain, it was sent to the West Philadelphia Homeopathic Hospital. Efforts of the physicians to revive Schott were futile.

WEAKNESS OF CHURCH REVEALED BY SUNDAY

The Rev. Dr. Pfatteicher Says Religious Faith Has Disclosed Lack of Faith.

The "Billy" Sunday campaign has stirred up a great deal of discussion on religion throughout the city, but it has also revealed a deplorable state of affairs in religious affairs, said the Rev. Dr. E. P. Pfatteicher, who preached the noonday Lenten sermon at Old St. John's Lutheran Church, Race street below 8th street, today. "Have we not been silent too long and too often in the presence of the enemies of Christ?" he asked. "A short time ago a friend of mine said that the coming of Mr. Sunday has made it so much easier to speak to others about religion. This is undoubtedly true. But is there not in it a terrible self-indictment to be compelled to acknowledge that we have been silent to the enemies and blasphemies of the enemies of Christ without interposing a single word of protest and without acknowledging our allegiance?"

Doctor Pfatteicher based his sermon, "The Silence of Christians in the Presence of the Enemies of Christ," on the incident of Peter sitting in the courtyard with the Pharisees and others about him while Christ was being tried within the palace. The silence of the disciple, while many persons about him made derogatory remarks about the Saviour, is typical of every one of us, he said.

THE BOMBS OF THE DEVIL

The Rev. H. C. Stone Scores Enemies of Church. The "bombs" which the devil employs in his warfare against Christians were described by the Rev. H. Charles Stone, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Old St. Paul's Church, 34 street below Walnut street, today. He scored the critics of the church and attributed the lack of progress of religion to them.

"The bombs of touchiness, busy-ness and traditionalism are three of the chief weapons which the devil uses against the Christian people," he said. "The causes personified by traditionalism are those that because men have never been religious and have never gone to church, they never will. They allow certain things, which they do not consider false, to retard them. The church cannot progress because members set themselves up as critics. Men who would not dream of discussing certain material things, which they feel they are not qualified to discuss, consider themselves experts who can criticize and judge religious matters."

He based his sermon on the action of the prodigal son's elder brother, taking as his text, "He was angry and would not go in."

AT ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH

The Rev. G. A. Johnson Preaches Lenten Sermon. "The Sacredness of Material Things" was the topic chosen by the Rev. G. A. Johnson, pastor of the Union Theological Seminary, for his noonday Lenten sermon at St. Stephen's Church, 10th above Chestnut street, today.

"Just people," he said, "often get a distaste for religion because it seems to take no stock in the outdoor life. This oneness is fatal. It arises in a way of thinking that disparages nature and that way of thinking is essentially evil. It has given rise to the idea of antagonism between science and religion, and it gives unreality to our moral conflicts, because it is ultimately in our handling of nature's stuff that our moral life becomes either a triumph or failure."

DOCTOR YERKES' SERMON

Get Above Environment, Says Lenten Preacher.

Methods of meeting our environments were outlined by the Rev. Dr. Royden K. Yerkes, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, 34th street and Woodland avenue, who delivered the noonday Lenten address at St. Peter's Church, 35 and Pine streets, today. "He spoke on 'The Making of Character.'" "Our environment may affect us in any one of three ways," he said. "First, we may meet it like the stone, who cares nothing for what is about him. Second, we may allow it to have undue effect on us and we become proud or melancholy, depending on the amount of success or failure we have. In either case it mars our character. Third, we may regard it as part of the circumstances in which we must work and make it bend to the development and the completion of that work. "God has placed each of us here for some definite work, and we should do that work with the help of, and in spite of, the environment in which we labor."

PLEA FOR EMERGENCY AID

Home Relief Division Asks Old Clothes and Shoes for Destitute.

An appeal for old clothes and shoes was made today by the Home Relief Division of the Emergency Aid Committee, in the Lincoln Building. Many hundreds of persons in destitute circumstances continue to pour into the headquarters seeking aid. Scores of them are virtually in rags and shoeless and it is to supply the needs of these that more supplies are required. Mrs. Barclay Warburton, chairman of the Belgian Relief Division, emphasizes the necessity of raising more funds for the aid of the Belgians. Recent letters received from Belgium and Holland state that the destination continues to increase and that immediate relief is needed.

CHURCH BUILT BY PREACHER AND WIFE TO BE DEDICATED

The Rev. and Mrs. Arthur G. Tippett Finish Task Begun Nearly a Year Ago in Spirit of Religious Zeal.

The Rev. Arthur G. Tippett thought there ought to be a church in a little settlement on the southern side of Maple Shade, which lies in New Jersey, less than 10 miles from Philadelphia. He preached a sermon there and explained his idea. But when he called for volunteer carpenters the only persons who held up their hands were the preacher and his wife, Ada Tippett.

No workmen, no money and not even a road to the place where the church was to be built—that was the way the thing started. Now the church is ready to be dedicated, because a clergyman who had never driven a nail had energy, and because his wife, in the midst of household work and caring for a baby, helped him haul stones, carry bags of cement, lift heavy sticks of timber and use a hammer and saw. She was his partner in building a road through an uncleared wood and together they managed to put up a paragon at the same time they were building a house of worship. The work was done in the few hours a day that were left after the preacher came back from his mission work in the Kensington mill district.

The building, called the Christ Free Church, is on Fort Landing road, a mile and a half south of the Maple Shade railroad station. It will be dedicated on Easter Sunday. Thirty-eight by forty feet in size, it has a two-story tower in which is built a study for the self-appointed pastor, who will have no salary. Three hundred people can be seated in it. When work was started last May there was no road to the site. The first work was to build a roadway through a mile of swamp land. The preacher and his wife did it. Then they sharpened their axes and cut away enough land to erect the church and the paragon, next door. That done, they marked out on the ground, with a stick, the boundaries of their proposed edifice.

One hundred wagon loads of stones from neighboring fields and the same number of bags of cement went into the foundations. The cement was donated after assiduous soliciting by the preacher-carpenter, and his timber came in the same way. There are 20,000 feet of lumber in the building. It consists of knotty pieces of many varieties of wood, contributed by lumber dealers, and hauled by the minister in a milk wagon. When this part of the work was going on, last fall, the clergyman's horse was found dead in a field. He was so weak that he could not try to help him out he himself was caught in mud and almost freezing water for four hours. The details of the building operation places in the conditions under which frontier missionaries worked in the West half a century ago.

Seventy-five dollars is the total of cash contributions which have been received by the builder. Opera chairs were donated after assiduous soliciting by the preacher-carpenter, and his timber came in the same way. There are 20,000 feet of lumber in the building. The Rev. Mr. Tippett and his wife were born in England. He was a preacher at 15 years of age, when he worked in tin mines in Cornwall. His grandfather, "Billy Bray, the Cornish Miner," was an itinerant preacher and built several stone churches with boulders wheeled from the mines in Cornwall. Tippett's mother was an ordained minister, and the preacher-builder ascribes his tendencies to heredity. He is non-sectarian. During the week he does mission work in the mill district of this city, where he is a familiar figure. During the summer he operates a "Gospel Car" in Bridesburg and Kensington.
